

JUDGES IN PITTSBURG TODAY INSPECTING COURT HOUSE PLANS.

They Will Also Look Over the Allegheny County Building to Get Suggestions for Use Here.

WILL BUILD ADDITION SOON?

Believed Original Plan Advanced by Judge Uebel is to Be Taken Up in the Near Future—Is Workhouse and Insane Asylum Coming?

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 19.—There is every prospect that a new addition to the Fayette county court house will be built in the near future. Judges J. E. Uebel and J. Q. Van Swearingen went to Pittsburgh this morning to look over the plans now being prepared.

It was known to but few people in Uniontown why the court went to Pittsburgh this morning. From one of the county officials it is learned that the proposed addition to the court house was the reason.

William Coffman, one of the members of the firm which designed the present court house, has prepared plans for the addition which is to be built to the present structure. The judges will look over these plans and then visit the Allegheny county court house and inspect that building with a view to securing suggestions that might well be adopted here.

The present condition of the court house is inadequate to care for the rapidly increasing legal business that must be taken care of. There is no room for the Orphans' Court to meet and at present Judge Work is holding his sessions in the Grand Jury room.

Some months ago the Grand Jury was directed to look into the matter of selling the coal under the County Home and detaching the proceeds to enlarging the court house and establishing a workhouse in the county. The Grand Jury fixed the price on the coal but it has not been sold yet. The value of the judges to Pittsburgh gives rise to the rumor that this coal may be disposed of in the near future, resulting in the erection of a workhouse and improving the court house.

Cairo Quiet But Troops Are Present

CAIRO, Ill., Feb. 19.—Cairo is quiet today, following the attack of the mob on the jail when one rioter was instantly killed and several were wounded by the volley on the Sheriff's order. It is not believed that the rioting will be resumed, but the officers are unwilling to risk the appearance of further violence and will maintain the troops in the streets and guarding the jail, where the two negro purse snatchers are confined, that the mob wanted to lynch.

The feeling here is very bitter and it is declared that in the mob were some of the leading business men of Cairo.

Husband Gone; Roll Is Gone; Police Hunting

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 19.—Where is A. P. Holly? Likewise, the police would inquire as to the present address of one Stonewall Jackson, a colored gentleman who lives by his wits as a member of the light colored gentry should. The police have a hunch that where Holly is, Stonewall is to be found also, unless Stonewall gets Holly's roll before either can be located.

Yesterday Holly got between $80 and $100 which was coming to him from the Standard Development Company for wages. As he emerged from Squire Boyle's office he was seen in town of Stonewall Jackson instead of going home to his wife and child. This was yesterday and since then neither has been seen. Mrs. Holly wants to find her husband, but the police are more interested in Stonewall, for they feel confident that Holly and his money will not keep company very long if the colored sharp is in the neighborhood.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 19.—Did John Lesco, by his inhuman brutality towards his wife, cause her death early this morning? This is the question County Detective Alex McBeth is waiting for Coroner H. J. Bell to answer before making an information against the Buffington foreigner, who was brought to jail today.

The wife had been in ill health for the past four months and her condition was aggravated by John's habit to be ugly when under the influence of liquor.

It was about 1 o'clock this morning that Lesco with a jag on, ordered his wife out into the cold. The attack frightened her and she ran screaming to the home of her sister, Mary Pincott. Mary came to the rescue and saved Lesco a tongue lashing which sobered him up to some extent. It was at 3 o'clock that Mrs. Lesco died. Dr. Cox was called but could find no marks of violence. Edward Maney, Veteran Oven Builder, Dead

Edward Maney, one of the earliest oven contractors and builders in the Connellsville region, known to all the older operators as a man of great mechanical ability, died yesterday in the Fayette county poorhouse, aged 70 years. Owen Murphy, the well known contractor of Connellsville, in the absence of all relatives of Maney and to save the body from being sent to Philadelphia for the use of the Anatomical society, on hearing of the death of the veteran, immediately arranged to take charge of the body, and will have it buried at his own expense.

Maney was the man for whom Murphy first worked when he came a green young lad from Ireland and located at Punxsutawney, where Maney was building 300 coke ovens for the Rochester & Pittsburgh Coal Company, Murphy staying with Maney for some time, and until he had mastered the theory and practice of oven building, when he went into small contracts for himself. Maney had big contracts and often had many thousands in cash in his possession at a time.

Fortune played her pranks and in time the man for whom Murphy worked in turn was employed by the latter. Maney had the ability to make money, but it is said that it slipped away from him as it came. For a number of times he worked as foreman for Murphy, and this morning the latter paid the dead man a strong tribute of remembrance and friendship.

The body will be brought to J. L. Studer's undertaking rooms this afternoon, and burial will be held on Monday morning.

Man and Wife, Tramps, Stop In Connellsville

Man and wife, traveling over the country together, making home sweet home wherever they hang their hats, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilson paid their annual visit to Connellsville yesterday afternoon. They spent the night in the lockup and were sent forth this morning to wend their weary way towards Greensburg.

The Wilsons have been coming to Connellsville every year and this time, as on former occasions, they put in a request for financial assistance. This time it was refused by Burgess Evans and the couple received a warning to get out of town within 15 minutes. Wilson said they were on their way from Washington, Pa., to Westmoreland county. Although the man claimed he had been working in the mills at Washington, his hands showed no evidence of recent hard labor.

Chief Rottler said the two always get intoxicated in Connellsville, and yesterday was no exception, he declared.

The Lacconians won out on recitation, oration and periodical; the Libertarians received the decision of the judges on essay and biography, making the Libertarians point two. PRICE IS ABOUT $175 AN ACRE Same Parties Also Negotiating For Purchase of Big Stone, Clay and Brick Company—Hogsett and Evans Coal Optioned.

It is learned today that New York parties are quietly securing options on all the Freeport and Kittanning veins of coal between Mt. Braddock and Coalspring, with a view of developing these seams in the near future. The names of the parties interested in the purchase are not known, but their agents have been active for some weeks past. Already in the neighborhood of 1,500 acres are under option at an average price of $175 an acre. Several large tracts have been secured in this manner.

Besides securing the coal, the same parties are negotiating for the purchase of the Monongahela Stone, Clay & Brick Company, which has extensive operations at Coalspring. This company owns from 30 to 40 acres of coal which has been opened. It is being used for domestic purposes, but is among the best coal in the neighborhood, having a depth of almost nine feet.

This company also has a complete equipment for developing the resources of that section, including a mile of tramroad, with motors, running from Coalspring to the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Lemont, where there is 700 feet of siding.

Among the largest options that have been secured are for the coal and surface on the Reuben Matthews farm near Mt. Braddock, 150 acres at $150; the John Gordon farm up Yaeger Hollow, 250 acres at $200 an acre; about 700 acres of the Hogsett coal, price not stated, and the coal of Samuel Evans at Coalspring for $100 an acre.

First Robin Seen Today At Fayette

Cheer up, cheer up and take heart. The first robin was seen in this neighborhood today, and if that is not a sign for the groundhog to get ready to turn over in bed and prepare to crawl out again then things in the weather world are going wrong.

Freeman G. Pyle, of Connellsville, a popular conductor on the West Penn, is filing his statement as the discoverer of the first robin redbreast today. He told of seeing the bird to a number of friends when he came in on the 12:30 car today. The friends listened to the story with great gladness.

The conductor heard a bird chirping near Fayette, between here and Dunbar, and looking around for the cause of the sweet music, saw a real robin redbreast, balancing himself on an ice covered twig, and chirping in lively fashion. Pyle looked long and earnestly at the happy harbinger and could likely identify it if he saw this particular bird again.

Junior Gym Class Boys Banqueted By Auxiliary Ladies of Y. M. C. A., Afterwards Choosing Cabinet.

If any one questions whether or not it pays to work for boys, the answer would have been found by a glance in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association yesterday afternoon and evening. A happier crowd of boys than those who were present at the banquet given by the members of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Junior class of the Y. M. C. A., would be hard to find.

The hour set for the feast was 5:30, but such an interest had been aroused in the affair that as soon as school was over the boys began to take possession of the building and from that time until eight o'clock the greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

It was just 6 o'clock when the word was given to pass into the auditorium and the sight that met the boys' eyes will never be forgotten. Five tables, arranged as neatly possible to represent a circle, with handsome decorations brought by the ladies from their own homes, presented an appearance worthy of a two dollar banquet.

But the value of the banquet was not so much the pretty dishes, or the handsome plunk which lay beside each plate, as in the tempting menu that the Auxiliary had prepared, and to say that the youngsters did ample justice to the meal would be putting it mildly. Everybody knows that a boy loves to eat, and the ladies knew this and arranged accordingly and every one of the 52 boys who sat down to the tables got up feeling that he wouldn't need anything more for a week. The menu included "Boston" baked beans, chicken, bread, mashed potatoes, pickles, jelly, cold slaw, ice cream, cake, coffee and fruit.

After this had been devoured, the organization of a Boys' Cabinet was taken up and the following officers were chosen for the first six months: President, Raymond Ward; Vice President, Marian Gilchrist; Secretary, Linford Ruth; Treasurer, Arthur Bowman; Chairman Membership Committee, Paul Wetherell; Chairman Social Committee, Joe Hood; Chairman Physical Committee, Eddie Erb; Chairman Religious Work Committee, Russell Engle.

President Ward acted as Toastmaster and called for speeches from Physical Director Kilbourne, J. Lawrence Schick, Chairman of the Membership Committee of the Y. M. C. A., and General Secretary Chase.

Impromptu speeches were made by several of the boys, among them being Joe Hood, Cyrus Kennell, Arthur Bowman, Elwood Keagy, Raymond Ward, Leroy Berkey, Dewey Miller, Marian Gilchrist, Max Photo, Paul Wetherell and Raymond Ward.

Each voiced the sentiment of every boy with reference to the kindness of the ladies in serving such a delightful banquet and many of them made suggestions for the newly organized Cabinet.

A three-round cheer for the ladies was given with such volume that an outsider might have thought there were 500 boys instead of about 50.

The officers and committee chairman will meet in a few days and draw up a constitution and by-laws for the Cabinet, to present to the next meeting at a near date, and a meeting of the committee chairman will also be held to select the membership of the committee. Every boy in the organization will be named on one of the committees and given something to do.

The ladies who arranged and served the banquet were Mrs. H. M. Korr, Mrs. Ford, Mrs. Leche, Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Wm. Rogers, Mrs. Cecil, Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Horner, Mrs. Crossland, Mrs. E. H. Marlette, Mrs. W. A. Bishop, Mrs. Harry Rodgers, Mrs. McClelland, Mrs. Horplek, Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. W. H. Cotton, Mrs. Q. Marlette, Miss Maud Jennings, Miss Mary Armstrong and Mrs. P. I. Chase.

Everywhere the boys were heard giving expressions to their sentiment: "The best time I ever had."

The pillars and balcony were adorned with artistic drapery of hunting white hearts and cupid were strung about the balcony and chandelier.

Dancing commenced at 8 o'clock and was kept up until midnight. During that time the hall presented a gay and pretty scene. Punch was served throughout the evening. About 50 guests were present, including Miss Ruth Campbell, of Clarion, a student at Washington Seminary, Washington, Pa., the guest of Miss Ruth Norris; Miss Lenora Towney, of Buckhannon, W. Va., the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Coll; and Col. R. D. Coulter, of Greensburg.

Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures. Grateful people testify. Here's one case of it:

C. C. Page, 105 East Main St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa., says: "I have been greatly benefited by Doan's Kidney Pills. My kidneys were very inactive and my back ached a great deal. There was also an extreme lumbago through my loins that would not yield to any other remedy I took. Finally I commenced using Doan's Kidney Pills and my experience was so satisfactory that I gladly recommend them." (Statement given Oct. 25, 1907.)

Two Years Later.

When Mr. Page was interviewed on Oct. 3, 1909, he added to the above: "Since I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago, I have taken them off and on and they have always given me prompt relief. You may continue to publish my former endorsement of this sterling remedy."

Patrons Day Is Observed At The Dunbar Schools With a Splendid Program.

Special to The Courier.

DUNBAR, Feb. 18.—In spite of the inclement weather the Dunbar borough school buildings were thronged with visitors on Friday, when the annual Patrons' Day was observed by the schools. Nothing was left undone by Professor J. C. Guyan and his corps of teachers to make a good impression upon the visitors of the work being done by the pupils during the present term of school. At 2 P. M. the regular work was performed by the classes in all the rooms, except in the High School, where one of the best literary programs in the history of the schools was rendered by the pupils and Miss Ethel Buckingham, teacher of Room No. 7, deserves much praise for the excellent showing made.

The following program was carried out, and the opening piece, which was from the Merchant of Venice, by Shakespeare, "The Choosing of the Casket," was well rendered by the five characters who took the different parts, as follows: Portia, Bertha Nelson, Norisela, Miriam Kerr; Bassanio, William Jones; Gratiano, Lawrence Day. The students deserve much praise for the way in which they portrayed the different characters of the play. Jennie DeVan then delivered "The Secret of Success," after which the High School Quartet rendered a beautiful selection, "Good Night, Beulah." May Porter then delivered "In Memoriam" after which a reading, "The Self Reliance of Lincoln," was well delivered by Mahel Kimball.

"The Life of Washington" was delivered by Anna Boyer, and Miss Margaret Hishenberg spoke on "Washington's Birthday," while Lester Day delivered a selected poem of Longfellow. After the quartet sang a hymn, "Praises in the Well," which was well received by the audience, Leone Kelly and Mary Tarr delivered selected poems from Longfellow and Alva Pomeroy delivered a well selected reading. Anna Wilson gave a reading on "Women in American History." Robert Morrison then delivered Lincoln's famous Gettysburg speech, which showed careful study. The choir then rendered "Annie Laurie."

The debate, "Resolved: That the extravagance of the American people is the cause of the high price of food," was one of the most interesting debates ever given in the High School, and coming, as it did, when the price of meats is soaring up and especially the price of pork, which is now the highest in 45 years, drew the interest of the visitors as well as the school to the closest attention as the debaters brought out their points, and especially what they thought would be their exceptionally strong ones, which both the affirmative and negative sides sought to impress upon the minds of the judges. The judges decided the debate in favor of the affirmative, whose side was handled by Chalmers Bryson and Jane Scott, and the negative by Ruth Baer and Mary Lee Smith.

The chess paper was read by Minnie Miller, which was quite original and had many extracts from the lives of two Presidents, Washington and Lincoln, whose birthdays come this month, and also many little coincidences of the life of Longfellow, after which two beautiful orations were delivered by Inez Bryson and Alia Baker. The former's "My Ideals," was delivered with much vim and exuberance and received considerable applause, while the latter's "What Women of America Are Doing Today," proved to be both interesting and instructive. The Society then adjourned to meet on March 1.

The different rooms of the two buildings were beautifully decorated for the occasion with flags, bunting and the pictures of two Presidents, Washington and Lincoln. School ponies were also used profusely in the decorations. The school work was displayed in many rooms and one of the most interesting exhibits was the work being done in the primary department, showing the neatness in the drawings by the small children. Each year the interest in school work increases and on Patrons' Day much enthusiasm is shown by the scholars. It was conceded by all who visited the schools that this was the best Patrons' Day ever held by the schools. Visitors were present from Connelville and other nearby towns.

GOT HIS HAIR BACK.

Was Perfectly Bald When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpetide.

Frederick Maunel, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of Newbro's Herpetide April 6, '09 and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes: "and today my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpetide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroy the cause and you remove the effect. Herpetide destroys the germ and that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts. Sold by leading druggists. Send for stamps for sample to The Herpetide Co., Detroit, Mich.

One dollar bottle guaranteed; Graham & Co., Special Agents.

SMITHFIELD.

SMITHFIELD, Feb. 18.—Tipstaff J. A. Rankin, who lives just out of the borough limits in Georges, did not attend to their duty by calling on the voters of Smithfield on Thursday morning on account of the condition of the roads. He started for Fairbance to take the trolley and get a short distance from home and after spreading himself all over the road a few times he returned to his home having great difficulty in getting back.

A word as to the errors in printing the ballots for the February election: If the judges of election who always get a sample ballot before the election did not attend to their duty by calling the commissioners' attention to the errors they could have had them remedied and saved much time and but air that has been wasted over the matter. The judges of election of Smithfield borough carried his sample ballot around in his pocket and did not know that there was anything wrong until his attention was called to it the morning of election.

Some of the opponents of license in the borough met in the Presbyterian Church Thursday night and effected an organization to fight it by electing Dr. H. B. Guther, president, and W. S. Leech, treasurer. A committee was also appointed to take the way and means to combat the granting of a license in the staid old village of Brownfield.

On Friday the Tarr schools observed Patrons' Day in manner worthy the day and the interest of the people have in their schools. The two rooms "In the Field" were in their best moods and did things in a way that pleased the great number of visitors present. Prof. Hale opened his room to the scholars of Miss Raygor who brought her visiting patrons over, and the rooms gave splendid program of school songs, recitations, a number of flag and motion songs, closing with an address by Rev. Mr. Guther on "Our School Brothers and Sisters" in the Philippines. The afternoon was pleasantly spent and the people went home rightly proud of their teachers, their schools and their children.

THE CO-OPERATIVE STORE
A DOUBTFUL EXPERIMENT.

The high cost of living finds first and most earnest protest in the ranks of labor from the workmen whose income under such conditions is often insufficient to support his family in comfort, but the remedy proposed by the Unione town public meeting called by the Trades and Labor Council will not prove wholly effective.

Co-operative stores are all right in theory, but they seldom if ever materialize themselves in the fact of individual competition. Their managers have not the same keen interest in the business that animates those who are working for something more than mere salaries. Then, there is always the disposition to sell at cost, which is often less than cost, so that in their efforts to be philanthropic the co-operative stores usually become bankrupt.

The best management with the least men, the best buying prices through large orders in short, combination and centralization, are the only practical means of cheapening prices. This is a business that even a co-operative establishment may often be understood by a combination bigger. For example, the proposed Unione town co-operative store might readily be understood by the mercantile branch of a big industrial corporation.

The co-operative store is on the whole a doubtful means of lowering the high cost of living, and one which we cannot recommend in the light of former experiments.

COMMISSIONERS NOT TO BLAME.

The County Commissioners are being criticized in some quarters because many of the ballots they sent out were defective. It is alleged that confusion was created by printing wrongfully after the names of some of the candidates the terms for which they were to be elected.

It is not possible for the County Commissioners to be familiar with the terms of all local officials and they have established the habit of printing on the ballots such information as is furnished them by the candidates. If the latter fail to look up their interests properly they must fight it out later in the courts.

The terms of many local officials are changed by the Constitutional amendments and the schedules accompanying the same. It was, therefore, unnecessary and ineffective for most candidates at the recent election to specify any particular term for which they ran, since the term will be subject to the Constitution which is the higher law and overrides all else.

BACK TO THE FARM AND THE OLD ORCHARD.

Somerset county people have not given thought to a wholly over to the hands of King Coal. "Back to the farm," finds an echo "back to the hills of Somerset." The Horticultural Society is debating how to rehabilitate the orchards and raise the best apples.

It is time Fayette county farmers were forming a similar society and organizing in similar work. Time was when Fayette county produced all the apples for people consumed; now we have to import them from the Maryland Valley and the far Pacific coast; yet there is no land in all the nation which produces finer apples than that of Pennsylvania. They may be larger in other sections, but the apples of Pennsylvania, like the grapes of France, have a flavor which cannot be equaled in any other portion of the earth.

While Pennsylvania people are getting back to the farm they should not forget the apple crop.

A Gotham cent has discovered a small denaturing wall which prevents the notes of a printing office from circulating the neighborhood. Unione town people are reported to be preparing a petition to the Town Council to demand the erection of such a wall around some of the vicious newspapers of that locality.

The smallest of us is to be leaving the Southern Fayette county people, and it is not a good thing that the latter are shedding any tears over the parting.

Even the fact is sometimes a deadly weapon but there is no law against carrying it even when concealed in the pocket.

The dispensation of justice in Great Connelville is getting to be a big and profitable business.

Chartered reports that an election from came true. That may be possible, but the man who relies on dreams in reality will not be very successful. It is not that count, and the people who win are those who go after them, not those who have visions of them.

Smallpox has invaded the churches in the Kentucky. Some evil deities on the part of the churches.

The western billiard must have been stricken.

The Connelville coke operators should cheer up and take courage and confidence. Perhaps the trade isn't as bad as it looks. The buyers are standing behind it and the sun.

ACCIDENT LOCATED
SPINE OF PERKINS.

Newspaper Men Jest at Expense of Senator From California.

CHRISTMAS PACKAGE BILL.

Secret of Merry-making Whose Chief Interest Centered About a Cactus Plant in California Discovered by Government Indian Agent.

United Press Special.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Newspaper men at the National Capitol are a hardened lot of unscrupulous. No other Senator's life has been so full of incident as that of Senator Perkins, who, since his speech of last session in the Senate advocating abolition of the press gallery and abolishing the correspondence for this frivolous handling of momentous events, hasn't been receiving very much attention in the public prints. So, also, thinks Senator Perkins, of California, now that the latest example of his irreverence has been brought to his attention.

A few weeks ago the California senator slipped on an icy pavement and bruised his spine. The news speedily reached the headquarters of the California newspaper correspondents. One of them became wildly excited. "Oh, it's only a trivial injury," one of his colleagues expostulated. "Trivial injury, hell," the perturbed one snorted. "My paper will want to get out an extra. Just think how he's hurt! Why, his spine's injured. Do you hear that? And out our way, they never know he had a backbone."

Senator Perkins is laying for the joker.

All the Christmas wags would be cast, if the opportunity were presented, in favor of a bill just introduced by Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, to correct an evil that was the source of much complaint in December.

It was to do with the not-to-be-opened-until-Christmas packages. Congress tried to pass a law providing that those words might be inscribed on the packages without raising the cost for postage.

Some genius in the Postoffice Department during the recent anti-Christmas days, decided that the law referred only to packages to which were attached printed labels giving the "don't open" warning. He ruled that if the warning was written on the package the latter was transformed from merchandise into letter mail and subject to double the merchandise rate of postage.

The department officials held up hundreds of packages on the ground of insufficient postage and the result was much confusion and delay.

Nelson's bill provides language that packages may be written the "don't open" notice on a package without changing the rate of postage.

Out near Banning, Cal., the Indians are at a feast. The news, which has just reached the Indian Office here.

In connection with the merry-making, the Indians started to play a game that looked like football. For some time they picked a cactus plant some distance off, near a vacant shack. While they were chasing one another around the desert, the agent in charge forgot his troubles and slumbered.

There was an old blanket thrown over the plant and hence the game of football in Banning and a few shining silver dollars. Inside the neighboring shack he found a Mexican peeping out of the window. The peeper had a pocket full of those silver dollars and several cases of booze beside him. He had a bar; all but the cash register.

The Mexican is in another shack now with lots of booze and the agent says that at the next Indian feast which he provides, if they play football, will hold him on the top branch, very, very vigilant.

Just a Glimpse at Our Initial Showing of New

SPRING SUITS

Have you seen them? Decided style changes are now here to greet the early season and their beauty is a thing of cetrinity. We've never shown more elegant ready-to-wear garments than will be exhibited by us
this Spring. "Elegance" combines all the best merits of a garment. The best in style, quality and tailoring—features that are always closely observed by every discreet buyer. It is "merit" that has won popularity for Dunn's Cloaks and Suits.

The Coats this season are much shorter than those of last. Styles are fitted and semi-fitted, with long rolling reverses, plain, moire or fancy collars, plain tailored or slight soutache or braid effect, square corners and well lined with best satin lining. Skirts are mostly plain plaited with panned fronts and tunic effect. There is a tendency this season in favor of walking lengths; in fact they are sure of popularity.
The suits we are showing up are of English suitings, homespuns, mixtures and novelties in colors of grey, blue, tan, green, rose, etc., in their various shades.

Unusual attention has been given this season to the style and quality of our Cloaks and Suits. Not a garment that comes into our store is placed on our racks without first being examined and if imperfect in fit, quality or workmanship, it is at once returned to the maker. Already, women have begun to do their Spring buying and those who buy early have the advantage of those who do not. The woman who buys her suit now realizes its full value while the garment is in style. Call and see them.

NEW

Good looking Spring Coats that are admired by all who see them. Plain, but stylish tailored effects in serges and light weight coverts, full length, fitted and semi-fitted styles. They come with plain or fancy collars and with or without cuffs. A coat, especially for Spring wear, is popular on account of the uncertainty of the season and can be easily put on or taken off.

PRESIDENT NOT MUCH ALARMED.

Business Conforming to Law Will Not Be Disturbed by National Administration.

ELOQUENT TARIFF FIGURES

Mr. Taft Tells How Republican Pledges Are Being Redeemed at a Lincoln Celebration in New York. Cannon and Others in Pittsburg.

PHILADELPHIA, February 19.—Lincoln the great emancipator. His name is indeed imperishable. Truly, "God reigns and the government at Washington still lives," and the government at Washington will continue to live so long as the name of Lincoln is an inspiration to the millions of loyal people of this great country. Lincoln is surely this nation's greatest hero. The sound of his illustrious name rolls in patriotic billows across our continent and no political line is strong enough to resist the reverence that name provokes.

Lincoln's natal day, February 12, was celebrated with a great overflow of oratory throughout our entire country and many of the most conspicuous figures in the affairs of our nation paid eloquent tributes to our martyred dead whose precepts and principles are an abiding comfort and a joy to all men. President William H. Taft talked of Lincoln to the Republican club of New York city. Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the lower house of Congress, told of Lincoln as he knew him at the most elaborate banquet ever given by the Pittsburg chamber of commerce. In other cities and towns throughout the country orators of force and prominence paid glowing tributes to our first American. At the Pittsburg banquet were Gov. Edwin S. Stuart and that advance agent of modern thought, Congressman Samuel W. McCall, of Massachusetts. Both shared equally in the honors extended to "Uncle Joe" and the three distinguished guests joined in a message to the country urging a return to the good old fashioned way of government.

In his New York speech President Taft gave emphatic notice to the whole world by saying "If the enforcement of the law is not consistent with the present method of carrying on business then it does not speak well for the present methods of conducting business and they must be changed to conform to the law." President Taft reviewed the pledges in the Republican platform upon which he was elected. He pointed out just how those pledges were being redeemed and to the Wall Street jinglers who shout "panic" at every administration move not tending to their advancement he said that "no one has a motive as strong as the administration in power to cultivate and strengthen business confidence and prosperity. He also declared that the administration would not be "foolish enough to run amuck in business and destroy values and confidence just for the pleasure of doing so." To his apprehensive Republicans of the country President Taft among other things said "It was Grant who banished his own fear in battle by thinking how much more afraid the enemy was. President Taft earnestly and vigorously defended the existing tariff law and contended that time and a wider knowledge would fully justify the tariff legislation. He brought statistics into his argument to demonstrate that during the first six months of the new tariff law there has been shown a 12 per cent reduction in the percentage of ad valorem duties paid on imports and a 12 per cent increase in the per cent of imports admitted free in discharging the new tariff legislation the President declared that the revenue had been downward and said "In the new tariff there were $54.400,000, 229 increases and 1,150 items of the dutiable list unchanged. Of the increases the consumption value of those affected which are of luxuries, to wit silks, wines, liquors, perfumes, pomades and like articles amounted to nearly $600,000,000 while the increases not on articles of luxury affected but about $700,000,000 against decreases on about $5,000,000,000 of consumption. I repeat therefore that this was a downward revision. It was not downward with reference to silks or liquors or high-priced cottons in the nature of luxuries. It was downward in respect to nearly all other articles except woolens which were not affected at all. Certainly it was not promised that the rates on luxuries should be reduced. The revenues were falling off, there was a deficit promised and it was essential that the revenues should be increased. It was no violation of the promise to increase the revenues by increasing the tax on luxuries. People I there was a downward revision on all other articles."

The more one studies the existing tariff and the more one reflects upon its operations the more thoroughly is one convinced that United States Senator John C. Penrose and his colleagues in the United States senate in standing hard and fast for the existing legislation knew well what would be served the whole people. It is becoming more apparent daily that certain special interests are at the bottom of the hue and cry against the tariff and that while those in interest are keeping well concealed they are employing thoughtless demagogues with leather lungs to mouth their grievances in the hope of promoting or provoking an epidemic of dissatisfaction against the law in the confidence that they may fare better should another revision be made. The one important fact should not be overlooked that under the existing law the people of Pennsylvania, and in every section of the State, have gone to work at good wages and for this cheerful condition, more than any other one man in the nation, Senator Penrose is responsible. In telling of the existing tariff law as a revenue raiser President Taft made some interesting comparisons. He said "During the six months that the Payne tariff was in force, from August 5 to the night of February 5, the customs receipts amounted to $166,002,856.54. Under the Wilson-Gorman tariff the semi-annual average was $83,147,626.90. Under the Dingley tariff the semi-annual average was $120,265,841.14. Under the Wilson tariff the monthly average was $13,857,937.65. Under the Dingley tariff the monthly average was $21,710,973.64; while under the Payne tariff the monthly average has been $27,667,142.76, or 100 per cent greater than the monthly average under the Wilson tariff and 26 per cent greater than the monthly average under the Dingley tariff."

After all it is a great pride and a glorious privilege to be a Republican and an apostle of Lincoln and a follower of such sterling leaders as President Taft, Senator Penrose and Gov. Stuart, generally accepted as being one of the very best governors Pennsylvania has ever had.

LOTTA FAUST'S SAD END.

Actress of "Sammy" Song Fame Sang as Death Claimed Her.

Up on Broadway in New York where the actors congregated in the afternoon to gossip and to celebrate each other's glories there were heard the other day only words of sorrow for the untimely death of Lotta Faust, the talented musical comedy actress, at New York.

Only a few weeks ago she was full of sparkle and vivacity, and her adorable back, which in a more romantic day might have been an inspiration to poets, was the lure which took great crowds nightly to "The Midnight Sons" at the Broadway, where Miss Faust was taken ill while singing. Others could sing and dance as well as she, but where is the actress with neck and shoulders so beautiful, rounded and snowy white as were hers?

A pathetic incident before the passing away of Miss Faust is told by the doctors and trained nurse. Fifteen minutes before death claimed her, while in a delirious condition, she rose in bed and sang in a clear voice the Carmen song which she introduced in "The Midnight Sons."

It wasn't until her famous "Sammy" song in "The Wizard of Oz" at the Majestic theater in 1903 that Lotta Faust began to reap in full measure the popularity which all actresses covet. In less clever hands and sung by a less captivating actress the song "Sammy, Oh, Oh, Oh, Sammy" might have passed for nothing. But Miss Faust knew just how to do it. She selected a box at the theater and nightly sang the number directly to its occupants. Man or woman old or young, the holders of that box received "Sammy" in a direct line from Miss Faust's lips.

One night when Sir Thomas Lipton was in the United States attempting to "lift" the American cup some of his friends inveigled him into the "Sammy box." With the first verse of the song he was bewildered, but at the second verse he capitulated outright. It ran in this wise:

Tommy, oh, oh, Sir Tommy, Tommy, when you come cruising we are scared of losing. Tommy, oh, oh, Sir Tommy, You are a sportsman both brave and true!

Tommy, if you are a winner Gladly will I hate to lose!

After the performance he was introduced to Miss Faust in her dressing room. Two months later he sent her from London ten pounds of the special brand of tea which his company prepares for King Edward.

WOULD DRESS PUPILS ALIKE.

Iowa Believes Costly Togs of Rich Keep Poor Out of Schools.

Uniformity of dress for all the pupils attending the public schools in Iowa is advocated by Roy A. Doty, mayor of Waterloo, Ia., as a means of placing the children of the poor and the rich alike upon a common plane. It is his belief the inability of the poorer classes to dress their children as attractively as the rich is driving many worthy boys and girls out of the high schools.

He would bar jewelry and have the color of all garments limited to neutral shades.

A Curious Barometer.
A curious barometer is said to be used by the remnant of the Armenian race which inhabits the southern most province of Chile. It consists of the castoff shell of a crab. The dead shell is white in fair, dry weather, but the approach of a moist atmosphere is indicated by the appearance of small red spots. As the moisture in the air increases the shell becomes entirely red and remains so throughout the rainy season.

TWO SENATORS SERIOUSLY STRICKEN WITH ILLNESS IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—According to the physicians in attendance on Senator Tillman, his condition was so serious that he would be compelled to give up all work for the remainder of this session. It was said that the well known South Carolinian was suffering from slight progressive paralysis, due to a leakage of blood in the brain caused by calcification of the arteries. Another Senator whose health was such as to alarm his friends was William Alden Smith of Michigan, who suffered from a serious attack of appendicitis. The gravity of Senator Smith's case was increased by his failure to submit to an operation as soon as he was informed by his physician that one was immediately necessary. He refused to accept their verdict as final and waited thirty hours for the arrival of his family doctor from Michigan to tell him what to do. Ben Tillman, as he is familiarly known, has been a familiar figure in the United States Senate, since 1895. Mr. Smith has been a Senator since 1907, when he was elected by the Michigan Legislature to fill out the unexpired term of Russell A. Alger. He was later re-elected for a full term. He was a member of the House of Representatives from 1895 to 1907.

ALTERNATE TO WEST POINT

O. R. Smith, Negro Candidate For Army, Athlete and Broncho Buster.

Ollie R. Smith the young negro who has been named as the alternate for the next Wyoming senatorial vacancy at the Military academy at West Point, N. Y., is one of eight children of Mr. and Mrs. Simon H. Smith, pioneer residents of Cheyenne, Wyo., who are well to do. He was born twenty-one years ago in Cheyenne and was educated there, graduating from the Cheyenne High school, class of 1908. He is six feet tall and weighs 170 pounds. He has regular features and is of light color. He is a regular attendant at church.

As an all-around athlete young Smith has few peers in Cheyenne. He is a good runner, a fine swimmer and a crack cricketer. He is an expert boxer and one of the finest horsemen in Wyoming, having won many prizes in "broncho busting" contests. Army officers who conducted his physical and mental examinations say he is physically perfect and of a high order of intellect.

Young Smith expresses confidence in his ability to go through West Point should he gain the appointment. Captain Young of the Ninth United States cavalry, stationed at Fort David A. Russell, near Cheyenne, also a negro, has been coaching young Smith.

An Effective Alarm.
Flannigan had been discharged from the artillery and went to live in a cottage in his native village. One day he left on a week's visit to some distant relatives, and a day later the village constable was standing at his door when he heard the sudden boom of the rusty cannon. Flannigan had mounted on his front hedge.

An instant later a black whizzed past the constable's ear and smashed his door to smithereens. The indignant officer, followed by the populace, rushed to Flannigan's cottage and found it still tenacious, but showing signs of recent burglary. When Flannigan returned the next week he heard the news and was delighted.

"OI prepared for burglars afore Oi went away," he said, "by thrainin' the gun on yer front door, constable, and connectin' it by secret wire to the doors and windows and loadin' it wid a brick. An' it hit the door slap in the middle? Heed, Oi wasn't a gun-layer in the artillery for nothin'!"—Pearson's Weekly.

JUST FUN FOR PEARSONS.

Aged Capitalist Delights in Giving Millions to Colleges.

After having given more than $4,000,000 to various struggling colleges in many parts of the United States Daniel L. Pearson of Chicago, a retired capitalist, now nearly ninety years old, recently reiterated his intention of giving away every cent he possesses before he dies.

"I am having more fun than any other millionaire alive," he said. "Let other rich men go in for automobiles and steam yachts. I have found, after endorsing forty-three colleges in twenty-four states, that giving is the most exquisite of all mundane delights. On my ninetieth birthday, April 11, I am going to have a squaring up with all the small colleges I have promised money to, and I serve notice now that, beginning then, I am going on a new rampage of giving."

"I intend to die penniless. If there are any other millionaires who want to have a lot of fun let them follow my example. I am going to live ten years longer, and during that time I expect to do nothing but give away money."

"I have given money to twelve colleges in the south. I don't think any of my other gifts have given me the same satisfaction that these have. It is due to sit here and think that the south knows it is made a better south by a blamed old abolitionist like me."

LAND CRABS.

Queer Creatures That Roam in Forests Far From the Sea.

One of the commonest and the largest of the Christmas island land crabs is the well known robber crab, which is found in most of the tropical islands of the Indian and Pacific oceans. It sometimes reaches a length of two feet and may measure seven inches across the back. Its colors are of a very gaudy description, the ground color being a bright red, upon which there are stripes of yellow, but in some cases a purplish blue is the prevailing tint.

The eyes are fixed on stalks which can be moved independently of one another, one long, the other short. The latter pair are continuously forked up and down. There is a pair of powerful claws, then several walking legs. In general appearance these animals are much more like rather stout lobsters than crabs, and one's first encounter with one of these creatures in the middle of a forest far from the sea is productive of much astonishment on both sides.

Another species of land crab common in Christmas island is a little brighter red animal which in general shape is much like the common shore crab. This variety makes burrows in the ground and in some places the soil is honeycombed with hundreds of holes. The crabs spend most of their time collecting dead leaves, which they carry in their claws, holding them up over their heads and drag down into their burrows, into which they scuttle at the least alarm.—Pearson's Magazine.

CHAPTER XIX. THE RETURN.

FROM the highlands below the Monastery Captain Inas and his men were able to study the situation in the city. The impracticability of an assault on any one of the stubborn, well-guarded gates was at once recognized. A force of 200 men, no matter how well trained or how determined, could not be expected to surmount walls that had often withstood the attack of as many thousands. The wisdom of delaying until a few thousand loyal though poorly armed countrymen could be brought into play against the city appeared at once to Prince Danton and John Tullis.

Squads of men were sent without delay into the hills and valleys to call the panic-stricken, war-torn farmers into the fold. John Tullis headed the company that struck off into the well-populated Gunkook district.

Marlanx, as if realizing the nature of the movement in the hills, began a furious assault on the gates leading to the castle. The watchers in the hills could see as well as hear the conflict that raged almost at their feet, so to speak.

The next morning Captain Inas announced to his followers that Marlanx had begun to shell the castle. Big guns in the fortresses were hurling great shells over the city, dropping them in the park. On the other hand, Colonel Quinnox during the night had swung three Gatling guns to the top of the wall, they were stationed at intervals along the wall, commanding every point from which an assault might be expected.

That night recruits from the farms and villages began to stream into the camp. They were armed with rifles, ordinary shotguns and unique bladed weapons, swords, staves and spears. All were willing to die in the service of the little prince. By the close of the second day nearly 3,000 men were encamped above the city. Late that night John Tullis rode into camp at the head of a great company from the Gunkook province. He had retaken the town of Gunkook, seized the fortresses and recaptured the entire fighting strength of the neighborhood. More than that, he had unlimbered and conveyed to the provisional camp two of the big guns that stood above the gates at the fortresses.

Marlanx trained two of his big guns on the camp in the hills. From the fortresses he threw many futile shells toward their place of shelter. They did no damage, instead of death, they brought only laughter to the scornful camp. Under cover of night the two Gatling cannons were planted in a position commanding the southeastern city gate. It was the plan of the new besiegers to bombard this gate, tearing it to pieces with shot.

The knowledge that Marlanx had no big guns except those stationed in the fortresses was most comforting to Tullis and his friends. He could not destroy the castle gates with shells, except by purest chance. He could drop shells into the castle, but to hit a gate twenty feet wide? Never!

Truxton King was growing bolder from worry and loss of sleep. He could not understand the abominable, criminal procrastination. He was of a race that did things with a dash and on the spur of the moment. His soul sickened day by day. John Tullis, equally unhappy, but more philosophical, often found him seated upon a rock at the top of the ravine, an unlighted pipe in his fingers, his eyes intent upon the hazy castle.

"Cheer up, King. Our time will come," he was wont to say.

Then came the night before the proposed assault on the gates. The guns were in position, and the cannonading was to begin at daybreak. Truxton was full of the bitterness of doubt and misgiving. Was he to lose with Vos Engo? Was the count's suit progressing favorably under the fire of the enemy? Was his undoubted bravery having its effect upon the wavering susceptibility of the distressed Loraino?

The sound of a voice in sharp command attracted his attention. There was a bright moon, and Truxton could see other pickets hurrying to join the first. A few moments later several irregularly armed men were seen through the lines and taken directly to headquarters—a man and two women, King observed.

John Tullis was staring hard at the group approaching from the roadway. One woman walked ahead of her companions. Suddenly he sprang forward with a cry of amazement.

It was the Countess Ingomede. Her arrival created a sensation. In a moment she was in the center of an amazed circle of men. Tullis, after his first low, eager greeting at the edge of the fire circle, drew her near to the warmth of his arms.

Prince Danton and Captain Inas threw their arms about her in a great heap for her to sit upon. Every one was talking to her. The countess was smiling through her tears. "Make room for my maid and her father. They are colder and more fatigued than I," she said, lifting her tired, glorious eyes to John Tullis, who stood beside her. "We have come from Dink. They suffered much that I might enjoy the slender comfort I was so ready to share with them."

"Thank God, you are here!" he said in low, intense tones. She could not mistake the fervor in his voice nor the glow in his eyes.

"I know you were here, John. I am not going back to Count Marlanx. It is ended."

"I know it would come, Ingomede. You will let me tell you how glad I am some day."

"Some day, when I am truly, wholly free from him, John. I know what you will say, and I think you know what I shall say in reply." Both understood and were excited. No other word passed between them touching upon the thing that was uppermost in their minds.

Food was provided for the wayfarers, and Tullis' tent was made ready for the countess and her maid.

The countess' story was soon told. Sitting before the great fire, surrounded by eager listeners, she related her experiences.

She had been seized on the night of the ball as she started across her father's garden, and escaped had become possible only through the aid of Joseph and the girl's father. Parents' wives told them of the newly formed army and of its leaders. He determined to make her way to the camp of those who would destroy her husband, eager to give them any assistance that her own knowledge of Marlanx's plans might provide.

One bit of information she gave created no end of consternation among the would-be deliverers of the city. It had the effect of making them all the more resolute; the absolute necessity for immediately regaining control in the city was forced upon them. She told them that Count Marlanx had lately received word that the Grand Duke Paulus was likely to intervene before many days, acting on his own initiative, in the belief that he could force the government of Graustark to grant the railway privileges so much desired by his country. Marlanx realized that he would have to forestall the wild grand duke. If he were to lose control of the Graustark government when the Russian appeared he and he alone, would be in a position to deal with the situation.

"The grand duke may send a large force of men across the border at any time," said the countess in conclusion. "Count Marlanx is sure to make a desperate assault as soon as he hears that the movement has begun. He has hopes of starving them out, thus saving the castle from destruction, but as that seems unlikely his shells will soon begin to rain in earnest upon the dear old pile."

Truxton King was listening with wide open ears. As she finished this dreary prediction he silently arose to his feet and, without a word to any one, stalked off in the darkness. Tullis looked after him and shook his head sadly.

He will be happy on that fellow's account when daybreak comes, for we are really at it," he said to Prince Danton, who knew something of King's affliction.

The Truxton King was not there at daybreak. When he strode out of the camp that night he left it behind for ever.

The unfortunate lack of means to communicate with the occupants of the castle had been the source of great distress to Captain Inas. If the defenders could be informed as to the exact hour of the assault from the outside they could do much toward its speedy success by making a force sortie from behind their own walls.

A quick dash from the castle grounds would serve to draw Marlanx's attention in that direction, diminishing the force that he would send to check the onslaught at the gates.

Truxton King had all this in mind as he swung off down the mountain path, having stolen past the sentries with comparative ease. The danger from Marlanx's scouts outside the city was not great, they had been scattered and beaten by Inas' recruiting parties. He stood in more danger from the men he would help, they who were the watchful defenders of the castle.

It must have been 2 o'clock when he crossed the king's highway, a mile or more above the northern gates, and struck down into the same thick undergrowth that had protected him and Inas on a memorable night not long before.

At 3 o'clock a dripping figure threw up his hands obligingly and laughed with exultation when confronted by a startled guardsmen inside the castle walls and not more than fifty yards from the water gate. He shouted a friendly cry as he advanced toward the man, calling out his own name.

Two minutes later he was standing in the presence of the haggard, nerve-racked Quinnox, pouring into his ears the news of the coming attack.

The colonel lost no time in routing out the sleeping guardsmen and reverses and in sending company hands to those already on duty at the gates.

When the sun peeped over the lofty hills he saw inside the gates a rest less, waiting company of dragoons ready for the command to ride forth.

Meanwhile King had crossed the grounds with Colonel Quinnox on the way to the castle. He was amazed, almost stupefied, by the devastation that already had been wrought. A dozen or more bulls had crashed into the facade. Yawling deacons, gigantic holes, marked the path of the ugly messengers from Marlanx. Nearly all of the windows had been wrecked by riflemen who shot from the roofs of palaces in and about the avenue. Two of the smaller minarets were in ruins. A huge pillar in the lower balcony was gone. The terrace had been plowed up by a single ricocheting shell.

"Great God!" gasped King. "It is frightful!"

"They began bombarding yesterday afternoon. We were asked to surrender at 3 o'clock. Our reply brought the shells, Mr. King. It was terrible. After the first two or three shells we found places of shelter for the prince and his friends. They are in the stone tower beyond the castle. The most glorious courage is shown. Count Vos Engo guards the prince and the ladies of the household. Alas, it was hunger that we feared the most. Today we should have resorted to horseflesh. There was no other way. We knew that relief would come tomorrow. John Tullis was there. And now it is today! This shall be our day, thank God!"

Attendants sped to the tower, shouting the battle tidings.

The prince came tumbling down the narrow iron stairs from his room above, shouting joyously to Truxton King. No man was ever so welcome. He was besieged with questions, handshakes and praises. Even the Duke of Perse, hobbling on crutches, had a kindly greeting for him. Tears streamed down the old man's cheeks when King told him of his daughter's safe arrival in the friendly camp.

But just now Truxton was staring at the narrow staircase. Vos Engo and Loraino were descending slowly. The former was white and evidently very weak. He leaned on the girl for support.

Count Halcott offered the explanation. "Vos Engo was shot last week through the shoulder. He is too brave to give up, as you may see. It happened on the terrace. There was an unexpected fusillade from the house-tops. Eric placed himself between the marksmen and Miss Tullis. A bullet that might have killed her instantly struck him in the shoulder."

King never forgot the look in Loraino's eyes as she came down the steps. Joy and anguish seemed to combine themselves in that long, intense look.

She gave him her hand. The look in her tired eyes went straight to his heart. Vos Engo drew back, his face set in a frown of displeasure.

"My brother?" she asked, without taking her gaze from his eyes.

"He is well. He will see you today."

"And you, Truxton?" was her next question, low and quavering.

"Unharmed and unchanged, Loraino," he said softly. "Tell me, did Vos Engo stand between you and the fire from the tower?"

"Yes, Truxton," she said, dropping her eyes as if in deep pain.

"And you have not broken your promise to him?"

"No; nor have I broken my promise to you."

"He is a brave man. I can't help saying it," said the American, deep lines suddenly appearing in his face. Swiftly he turned to Vos Engo, extending his hand. "My hand, sir, to a brave man!"

Vos Engo stared at him for a moment and then turned away, ignoring the friendly hand. A hot blush mounted to Loraino's brow.

Vos Engo's response was a short, bitter laugh.

CHAPTER XX.
THE LAST STAND.

SOON after 5 o'clock a man in the topmost window of the tower called down that the forces in the hills were moving in a compact body toward the ridges below the southern gates.

One hundred picked men were to be left inside the castle gates with Vos Engo, prepared to meet any flank movement that might be attempted. Three hundred mounted men were selected to make the dash down Castle avenue straight into the camp of the sharpshooters. It was the purpose of the house guards to wage a fierce and noisy conflict off the avenue and then retreat to the castle as abruptly as they left it, to be ready for Marlanx should he decide to make a final desperate effort to seize their stronghold.

The dash of the 300 through the gates and down the avenue was the most spectacular experience in Truxton's life. He was up with Quinnox and General Bruze, galloping well in front of the yelling troops. These mounted carbineers, riding as Bedouins, swept like thunder down the street, whirled into the broad, open arena beyond the duke's palace and were upon the surprised riflemen before they were fully awake to the situation.

They came tumbling out of barns and sheds, clattering their rifles in nervous hands, against the face of absolute destruction. The enemy, craven at the onset, threw down their guns and tried to escape through the alleys and side streets at the end of the common. Firing all the time, the attacking force rode them down as if they were so many dogs.

After ten or fifteen minutes of this demitour carnage it was reported that a large force of men were entering the avenue from Regentz circus. Quinnox sent his chargers toward this great horde of foot soldiers, but they did not falter, as he had expected. On they

R. E. CABELL, MAN WHO WILL COLLECT THE NEW CORPORATION INCOME TAX.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—One of the busiest men in Washington these days is Royal E. Cabell, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, upon whom falls the duty, according to the new tariff law, of collecting from the corporations of the country the tax imposed by that law. The information required by the terms of the law from the corporations must be filed with the Commissioner on or before March 1. Every corporation that fails to have its report, properly made out, in the hands of the collector of internal revenue by that time for transmission to the Commissioner makes itself liable to a fine of not less than $1,000 and possibly $10,000. Very many of the returns are being received as the time limit draws near. There is a great deal of work about the collection and examination and recording of the returns. The law provides that every corporation shall pay a tax of 1 percent upon its entire net income over and above $5,000. In enacting the law Congress appropriated $100,000 for its enforcement.

He dropped to his knee and took deliberate aim at the frenzied benchman. The discovery that there were three bullets in Brutus' breast when he was picked up long afterward did not affect the young man's contention that his was the one that had found the heart.

The fall of Brutus urged the Iron Count to greater fury. His horse had been shot from under him. He was on his feet, chiding to his men to follow him as he moved toward the stubborn row of green and red. Bullets hissed about his ears, but he gave no heed to them.

The commander of the guard gave the command to fall back slowly toward the castle.

Truxton King's chance to pay his debt to Vos Engo came after one of the fiercest, most determined charges. The young count had been fighting desperately for some time. His weakness seemed to have disappeared. As the foe fell back in the face of desperate resistance Vos Engo sprang down the steps and rushed after them, calling others to join him in the attempt to complete the rout. Near the sweep, 2,000 or 3,000 of them. At their head rode five or six officers. The foremost was Count Marlanx.

Quinnox saw now that the Iron Count was determined to storm the gates and gave the command to retreat. Waving their rifles and shouting defiance over their shoulders, the dragoons drew up, wheeled and galloped toward the gates.

Scarcely were the massive portals closed and the great steel bars dropped into place by the men who attended them when a low, dull explosion shook the earth as if by volcanic force. Then came the crashing of timber, the cracking of masonry, the whirling of a thousand missiles through the air. Before the very eyes of the stunned, bewildered defenders, dismounting near the parade ground, the huge gates and pillars fell to the ground.

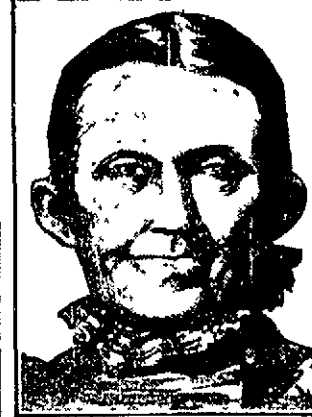

The gates had been dynamited. Then it was that Truxton King remembered. Marlanx'sappers had been quietly at work for days drilling from the common to the gates. It was a strange coincidence that Marlanx should have chosen this day for his culminating assault on the castle. The skirmish at daybreak had hurried his arrangements no doubt, but none the less were his plans complete. The explosives had been laid during the night. The fuses reached to the mouth of the tunnel across the common. A he snoot up the avenue at the head of his command, hawk faced and with glittering eyes, he snatched the command that put fire to the fuses.

A moment later his vanguard streamed through the aperture and faced the kindly fire from the driveway.

At last they began to advance across the grassy meadow. When one man fell under the fire of the guardmen another rushed into his place. Three times the indomitable Graustarkians drove them back and as often did Marlanx drag them up again, exalted by the example he set.

"Gad, he is a soldier!" cried Truxton. "Hello! There's my friend Brutus. He's no coward either. Here's a try for you, Brutus."

edge of the terrace he stopped. His leg gave way under him, and he fell to the ground. Truxton saw him fall.

He leaped over the low balustrade, dropping his hot rifle, and dashed across the terrace to his rival's assistance. A hundred men shot at him.

"It's my turn!" shouted the American. "I'll square it up if I can. Then we're even!"

He seized the wounded man in his strong arms, threw him over his shoulder and staggered toward the steps.

"Release me, curse you!" shrieked Vos Engo, striking his rescuer in the face with his fist.

"I'm saving you for another day," said King as he dropped behind the balustrade with his burden safe.

There were other witnesses to Truxton's rash act. In a lofty window of the north wing crouched a white faced girl and a grim old man. The latter held a rifle in his tense though feeble old hands. Now and then the old man would sight his rifle and fire. The girl who crouched beside him was there to designate a certain figure in the ever changing mass of humanity on the bloody parade ground. Her clear eyes sought for and found Marlanx; her unwavering finger pointed him out to the old marksmen.

A Difference in Time.
A traveler in Ireland, riding a horse that had been better days, stopped on a country road in Donegal and asked a peasant.

"How far is it to Letterkenny?"

"Now, every true Irishman, gentle or stupid, is a born sportsman and has a keen appreciation of the points of a good horse. So, after surveying the sorry steed with the eye of a connoisseur, the rustic replied slowly:

"That depends."

"How depends? Depends on what?" asked the traveler impatiently.

"Well," returned Pat in the same measured tones, "ye see, sor, wid a decent horse it's a matter av five mile or so; wid that quare baste av yours it's fully 15. But"—with a sudden burst of energy—"if it was wan av Major Doyle's blood mares ye'd be there now!"

GREEN ROOM CHAT.

"Paid in Full."

At the Soloson theatre Saturday matinee and night, Feb. 26, the Waggoners & Kemper company will offer Eugene Walter's celebrated play of present day American life "Paid in Full," a drama whose tremendous success and extraordinary popularity have made a sensational chapter in theatrical history. The record of "Paid in Full," beginning with the night it awoke New York to highest enthusiasm, places it far and away in the lead of any play this country has seen. After that notable opening in New York when a critical first night and licence was roused to cheers, "Paid in Full" remained two years on Broadway. Summer did not check its run. It is the only play without music that has ever had a continuous summer run in New York. So exceptional was its popularity that last year the Waggoners & Kemper company had five companies presenting it in all parts of the country. Each of those companies appeared at different times in Greater New York where every return engagement of the play proved a fresh triumph. "Paid in Full" was the biggest drawing attraction in the metropolis. Each time it came back it renewed its enormous hit. Again this season the same five companies are continued. Never before has any play been acted by so many. This fact alone stamps "Paid in Full" as the greatest play of the age. It is a masterpiece. It rings true and drives home. There is vigor in every word and movement, there is virile, pulsing life. The characters are men and women we recognize, with whom we come in daily contact, their lives are such as we understand. Therein lies the play's amazing hold. It depicts with striking realism and vividness persons and conditions close to us, of which we have direct understanding. The engagement in this city is the most notable thus far announced for this season, and it will attract even the most infrequent patrons of the theatre.

This Changeable Weather is Responsible for Colds and Pneumonia.

The thing worth knowing about pneumonia is that it is a cold that has attacked the lining of the lungs.

Another fact worth knowing is that pneumonia attacks only those whose systems lack fighting power to drive off the germ—a germ many persons who look strong and robust lack this fighting power.

If at the first sign of the cold you take Father John's Medicine, you not only cure the cold, but nourish and strengthen the whole system.

Then the little health microbes which exist in your body gain vitality and force to overcome the visiting disease germ, whether of pneumonia, grip or any other ailment.

A curious effect of the maneuvers has been the alarm shown by the native inhabitants of some of the villages and towns in the "war" district. Believing that real war has broken out, they fled to the mountains.

That there is abundance of water in the stream to warrant this improvement, has been proven by four different examinations made by the Government engineers the last two in 1902 and 1908, during which the river was wharfed and proper data collected, and the fact established that there is

"I feel it my duty to let you know with what success I have used the Cura Remedio. When our baby was seven weeks old he broke out with what we thought was heat but which gradually grew worse. We called in a doctor to ask if we were doing it wrong and from that time he doctored six months with three of the best doctors in Astoria but he only got worse. His face, head and hands were a solid sore. There was no end to suffering for him. I had to tie his little hands to keep him from scratching. He never knew what it was to sleep well from the time he was the day old until he was cured."
